Cambodian Consortium for Out of School Children

Approaches for local and community based advocacy
Engagement

Children are actively engaged as a part of planning and identifying resources for community mobilization.

Participatory school mapping or household mapping or survey of the OOSC in targeted areas.
Empowerment

They are empowered to bring positive changes to their communities and act as change agents. Children’s clubs and youth clubs can play a vital role in guiding children in the same direction to achieve this change.
Community members and local authorities

Engaging community members and local authorities
Local capacities and skills

Investing in local capacities and skills in school management and community development
Involvement of a broad spectrum of all key stakeholder
Thank you!
